PROSE POEM

There is no summer-only rain and rain, the chill of morning and the wind again sweeping the arches of the wretched sky, and the sun persisting in its sorry lie. The sweet-voiced thrasher—it has stilled its songs; the leeman falters on his empty tongs. She is not with us whom we missing grieve—the gentle summer, as we may perceive. They have aggrieved her with the war of kings, the submarining and some other things. The mood of summer is to soft guitars and moon-light ballads—she's afraid of Mars! That old red anarch with his bloody hands—the gentle summer never un-derstands. Alas! the robin on the dewy lawn! This is not summer, like the years agone. There is no sum-mer-only rain and rain, the chill of morning and the wind again sweeping the arches of the wretched sky, and the sun persisting in its sorry lie.-St. Louis Dispatch.

IN JULY

The hay at last is cut, And mostly mowed away; And that were lovely, but That when we've done the hay,

Then comes the wheat, With hardly pause enough between to stop and eat. The old-time harvest song

Which erst we used to sing, is absolutely wrong That ancient stall

Had led us to believe that harvest came in fall! The wheat is in," they cried; "Now let the wild winds blow, While snugly housed inside

We laugh at frost and snow, And in the gloam We sit around the fire and sing of Harvest Home!

And we have read about The "sheaf of yellow wheat" That kindly rubes left out For hungry birds to eat

And all the grain was reaped, and frost was in the ground. The golden grain is drawn

Beneath a sky of fire, And merely looking on Compels me to perspire. I'm going to share

These sweet, old-fashioned songs with Hank-and hear him swear!

READY TO FIX BLAME FOR BOAT DISASTER Coroner's Jury Investigating the Eastland Catastrophe Agrees Upon Main Points in Its Verdict.

Chicago, July 29 .- Six men, includ ing officials of the companies owning and chartering the steamship East and and government inspectors, were ordered held by the coroner's jury in connection with the disaster early this

Those ordered held are: W. K. Greenebaum, general manager of the Indiana Transportation Co., that chartered the boat for the day; William H. Hull, general manager of the Chicago-St. Joseph Steamship Co., owners of the vessel; Capt. Harry Pedersen, commander of the ship; J. M. Ericson. chief engineer of the boat; Robert Reid, federal inspector at Grand Haven, Mich.; J. C. Eckliff, federal inspector of steamships. These men were ordered held to the state's grand jury on charges of manslaughter. Chicago, July 29.-The coroner's jury Wednesday night agreed upon th main points in its verdict fixing the blame for the capsizing of the excursion steamer Eastland in the Chicago river with a loss of from 1,000 to more than 1,400 lives. "We have agreed on practically everything," said Dr. W. A. Evans, foreman of the jury. Although the jury did not hear Capt. Pedersen and Engineer Ericson, State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne let them read the confessions of the men, made when Pedersen declared he "did not intend to be the goat" and be sent up like the captain of the General Slocum. Their confessions, which agree in essentials, are said to be substantially that they knew the boat to be unsafe; that Inspector Reid had granted an increase of 250 in the carrying capacity of the boat; that Ericson was given a soft berth as chief engineer of the Eastland shortly after the increase permit was given; that Ericson is Reid's son-in-law; that it took 17 minutes to load the boat; that the water ballast tanks were empty; that the tanks refused to work properly the morning of the accident, and finally that there would have been time enough to unload the boat from the time she first started to list until she went over. The testimony of the day showed that: 1-The ballast tanks of the Eastland were empty when the loading started. 2-The tanks had been pumped out at 6 o'clock in the morning, about an hour before the loading. 3-That the tanks the morning of the disaster were in charge of Second Assistant Engineer Fred Snow, who had been on the boat but two days, who knew nothing of how long it took to fill or empty the tanks, and who had been instructed but 15 minutes in how to handle them by Chief Engineer

FARMER GORED BY BULL

MAN'S BODY, MANGLED ALMOST BEYOND RECOGNITION, IS FOUND BY POSSE.

Chardon, O., July 29 .- Mangled almost beyond recognition, the body of Charles Zethmayer, 55, Newbury township, was found in the woods on his farm by a posse of farmers. A short distance off, horns and mouth covered with human blood, stamped and snorted a bull belonging to Zethmayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Hay and Miss Margaret Simon, who lived on the farm adjoin ing Zethmayer's, reported the animal had broken out of a field and had pur sued them. Mrs. Zethmayer decided to wait until the return of her husband from the field, when, with the aid of his sons, Frank and Eino, the animal would be captured. When Zethmayer failed to appear a search party was

COUNTY CLERK'S REPORT.

According to the annual report of the clerk of court's office, compiled Deputy J. Arthur Ferris, a total $423,968.87 figured in the money judgments of common pleas court during the year 1915. The total figure was quite a tumble from the mark reached the year previous, which was $489,876.21. The report sets forth that the total of money and other judgments reached $197.282.43. Sociologists will find fertile field for thought in the report pertaining to the county coroner which reveals the fact that homicides, sulcides, accidental deaths, and natural deaths in which the coroner was called doubled during the year as compared to the 1914 records. Cold figures show that there were 24 homicides, of which denly from natural causes. During the year 1914 he investigated a total of teen persons died from intemperance, the number the year previous was lary, 35; mbezzlement, 6; forgery, 7; grand larceny, 12; petit larceny, There were 82 prosecutions in which 61 convictions were secured. In 1914 prosecutions for the above offenses amounted to 79, resulting in 56 con-

The new state board of agriculture has been in continuous session since its inception as the successor of the Ohio Agricultural commission. Ten members have been threshing out political chaff and finally after five days of effort, at the demand of the governor, the plum fell into the lap of Renick W. Dunlap, republican, who was formerly head of the dairy and food department "in the good old days" and the state paid the bill for the time used. Others of the old regime are camping on the grounds and the work of turning over the agricultural work of the state to the politicians for their own benefit is well under way. From present indications it appears that the chief work of the secretary, who gets $4,000 a year, is the conduct of the annual Columbus are even now working to have made into a local trade exposithe chief boards of the commonwealth parceling out the work of the state fair just as though that was the chief-est activity of the state. At the very outset of the new ripper regime it is evident that they are modeling their plans and work after the conduct of the county agricultural society whose sole duty is the opertaion of an annual exhibition, and of course the first duty under this system is placing the job holders.
